

Lo-Fi and Design Principles

- Signifiers: We have used signifiers to help with the navigation and navigation clarity. We have done this by using symbols and graphics to help understand the navigation of the website. An example of this is using the different SDG symbols for navigation. The picture is able to translate what the information is about at a glance to the user.
- Cultural Constraints: Since we live in a country where we read left to right; the diagrams have been made with such constraints in mind. This means having the most important information we want the user to see at the top or at the top left if there are multiple things at the same level.
- Affordances: We have designed our diagrams in such a way that it is obvious what will be a clickable button and what will not be. We want all the clickable elements of the design to pop out past the static elements to show the user that they can be interacted with and not just to be viewed.
